THEY SAY

—Call West 380.

—That the average Negro gets too heavy when he has domestic troubles and does lots of foolish things.

—That if your mirror reflected you as others see you, you wouldn't have one in the house.

—That some folks know all about it until they get to the proper place to tell what they know, then their thoughts leave them.

—That the preacher who thinks it is all right to take a "nap" at a certain sister's house when hubby is away is taking mighty desperate chances. What say ye?

—That a certain man who frequents a certain home very often and felt himself a privileged character had the privilege of getting out in such a hurry that he left his hat, coat, shoes, pants, socks—well, in fact, everything that wasn't handy to take with him.

—That a party which had been announced to take place several days ago proved to be a blank because the Furniture Company decided it wanted its goods back in the store. Too bad they couldn't wait until after the party, wasn't it?

—That a Cullud woman was on her way to do her daily washing and said a friend nearby: "You know it's been so chilly these last few days, I jes hain't took a bath." Well, everybody in the car knew it before she thought of making the remark. Help wanted.

—That a certain ole cullud feller was arrested the other day for stealing tires and when brought before the Judge he gave as his reason for doing so: "I jes has to ride, Judge; I has a car but no tires." The Judge said two years at Jefferson City as that will give you a longer ride than sending you to Leeds. Lawd help.

—That a Pole Cat challenged a Lion one day as to which should use a certain path. The Lion tried to reason with the little animal but he would not hear and bristled up for a fight. The Lion looked complacently down on him and said: "See here, Mr. Pole Cat, everybody knows I can whip you, but what would it profit me? It would be said right away that Mr. Lion, you have been fighting with a Pole Cat." Moral: Don't argue with a pole cat.
